

Dwight Wilson

Chief Executive Officer

Every day, volunteers, donors, and professional staff help Mission Hospice serve those with life-limiting illnesses. We see first-hand the importance of personalized, compassionate care in easing the physical, emotional, and spiritual pain of our clients.

Our nonprofit was started in 1979 to provide needed end-of-life care to patients in the San Mateo County area. Today, our board members and other volunteers remain committed to supporting our local community.

With this Annual Report, we acknowledge the contributions of hundreds of Mission Hospice donors and volunteers. I'd especially like to recognize our 2013 Lotus Award winner, direct care volunteer Juanita Andersen, who epitomizes the dedication to quality care for which our volunteers and staff are known.

I'd also like to give special thanks to our Board President, Maryann Raab, and the entire Mission Hospice Board of Directors, who put in countless hours to see that our services are well-managed and supported.

This year has been full of growth for our organization: more staff, more volunteers, and more office space – all allowing us to provide exceptional care to our neighbors and friends when they need it most.

Maryann Raab

Board Chair

Mission Hospice & Home Care was founded with the belief that every person in our community deserves quality, compassionate care at the end of his or her life.

Our professional staff and volunteers provide the highest level of personalized care, above and beyond what insurance will reimburse. Medicare covers only a fraction of the costs for our Advanced Care program, and doesn't pay for our Transitions services at all. Medicare and private insurance cover only about 88% of our costs.

Gifts from community members fill that gap, making it possible for Mission Hospice to provide exceptional care for patients and families through their last days together.

In 2012, we served more than three times as many patients as we did just five years ago. As our population ages, we anticipate and are preparing to serve even more patients in all of our programs.

Your gifts allow us to serve those who need it most, regardless of their insurance coverage or ability to pay.

Thank you for helping us ensure that everyone in our community can spend their last days with dignity, and surrounded by loved ones.

The Mission Hospice Team

Mission Hospice & Home Care is led by a volunteer board of directors working alongside our professional administrative staff. Our compassionate direct care professionals are fully dedicated to our patients and their families.

Ruben Valencia Family first

When Ruben Valencia came to the end of his final interview to become a US citizen, the examiner offered to administer the oath of citizenship then and there. Valencia, who has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) and is wheelchair-bound, insisted on delaying this moment, choosing instead to attend the full-scale naturalization ceremony in Oakland.

The ceremony was the culmination of years of effort on the part of Valencia, Mission Hospice staff and volunteers, and other supporters. Like most things in his life, Valencia's citizenship is a means to help his family. Ruben Jr., 8 this year, Alejandra, 6, and Dylan, who was born in April, have never known their father without the disease, his wheelchair, and his helpers. They are American-born, but his wife Elizabeth, a native of El Salvador, needs to be naturalized to guarantee that the family can stay here after Ruben is gone.

wife Elizabeth, a native of El Salvador, needs to be that the family can stay here after Ruben is gone.

Valencia, who was born in Mexico, came to the US at age seven. He grew up in South San Francisco and attended Burlingame High School. In 2003, he met Elizabeth at the company where he was the warehouse manager. They married in 2004, which "The doctor told me there isn't a cure," Valencia recalled during an interview. Mission Hospice social worker Gloria Gutierrez helped to translate because ALS makes it difficult for him to be understood. Hospice volunteer Curt Luck said he and Ruben have had to develop new ways to communicate. From normal speech, Ruben went to using his computer. He manipulates the mouse with his feet to spell out words.

also was the year Ruben was diagnosed with ALS,

a condition in which the body's muscles eventually

Valencia was more able when he joined the Mission Hospice Transitions program in fall 2008. He was certified for hospice care shortly thereafter. His Mission Hospice team includes Gutierrez, Luck, nurse Jane Tobin, and Dr. Ken Barnes.

Luck has seen a number of changes in Valencia's physical abilities, but not in his outlook.

"You can tell from his wedding pictures that he was a big guy, and now he's a lot smaller, but his mind hasn't changed at all," he said. "His quality of life remains good because he has such a great attitude. He inspires me with his emotional maturity, patience, and good will."

Luck said it took more than three years to find an attorney who could lead Ruben through the anxiety-charged citizenship process.

Over the years, the team also has worked to get the family adequate housing and subsidized day care for the children, supervised their in-home caretakers, trained the caretakers to use a Hoyer lift to make transfers, and obtained specialized wheelchair equipment.

The team recently replaced Ruben's broken computer, his main link to the outside world through Facebook and other media. A grant from the Dream Foundation enabled the Valencias to attend a family reunion in Los Angeles.

"All this," Gutierrez adds, "has been instrumental in Ruben being able to remain at home with his family."

Without hospice, Ruben would undoubtedly be in a nursing facility instead of helping to raise his children. Hospice care is a way he can take care of his loved ones. Although his future with the disease is not good, he prefers to remain positive. For his wife and children, every day is precious. Asked what he wants for the future, Ruben replies, "Just to be with my family."

Judy DiPaolo Professional expertise and a passion for health care

Two themes have run through Judy DiPaolo's professional and volunteer life: health care and human resources. For 25 years, Judy has worked as a human resources (HR) leader for Mills-Peninsula Health Services and the Peninsula Coastal Region of Sutter Health, where she managed a team of professionals in support of 7000 employees.

Her roots in health care run deep. After graduating from UC Berkeley with a degree in medical social work and completing graduate school, she headed to West Africa as a Peace Corps volunteer, where she established and ran baby clinics in Burkina Faso for two and a half years.

Following her return to the states, Judy jumped on an opportunity to become a human resources professional. She says she loves the fast pace. "It is never boring – new issues come up every day." She also finds it a great opportunity to exercise both the analytical and the people-oriented sides of her brain.

The combination of her full-time career, raising a family, and volunteer activities such as PTA kept Judy more than busy for many years. After her sons left for college, she was ready for a new kind of community service. She was asked to join the Mission Hospice Board of Directors in 2004, and immediately found it was a good fit, explaining that "hospice care is something that is near and dear to my heart."

Not surprisingly, Judy chairs our board's HR committee; she also serves on the Executive Committee. Recently she was elected Secretary, and she now serves on the Palliative Care Committee as well.

Her broad understanding of health care issues in general – and of the specific staffing and accreditation issues facing medical organizations – has been invaluable to Mission Hospice. As the organization has grown, Judy's expertise and guidance has been key to ensuring that we can do that in a meaningful and responsible way – and that our staff is ready to support that growth.

Outside of the board room, Judy advises Mission Hospice CEO Dwight Wilson on Human Resources issues. She's just now completing a months-long project: an employee satisfaction survey. By meeting and interviewing teams of Mission Hospice employees across the organization, Judy was able to provide valuable feedback to leaders to help them grow and strengthen their teams.

Her calm professionalism is matched by her generosity and enthusiasm for serving the community. "Everyone wants to feel, at the end of the day, that they're making a difference," Judy said. "I love working for an organization that puts the patient first. It's all about the care for the patient and the service that can be provided. It's gratifying that my background and experience are of value in helping the organization continue to grow and succeed. I'm very proud of what we've been able to accomplish at Mission Hospice."

Jane Tobin A nursing spirit

Jane Tobin exudes a quiet confidence – something she likely developed through years of providing patients with physical and spiritual comfort.

A former Catholic Sister, Jane is now an Associate of the Sisters of St Francis. Jane earned degrees in psychology and nursing, becoming a Certified Critical Care Nurse, and later, a Certified Hospice and Palliative Care Nurse. She spent several years working for an at-cost clinic for farmworkers in the Coachella Valley, where she saw the importance of preventative care and symptom relief. It was also her introduction to family-centered care.

Jane was able to combine her two callings – spirituality and medical care – while serving as a wellness coordinator for her fellow Franciscan Sisters in the Central Coast area. When she had the opportunity to work alongside hospice nurses who were caring for a terminally ill Sister, Jane says, "it got me thinking that this way of caring for people and their loved ones is the way that I want to practice nursing."

In 2004, she discovered Mission Hospice, and says it was a "perfect fit, because of the holistic care offered and the close personal connections between all the people working with a patient and family. We really support one another to do the best work we can together for the people we serve. Spiritual, emotional and other kinds of support are integral components, along with physical care. There is time to be present to people and support them in a personalized way."

As a nurse case manager for Mission Hospice, Jane creates and manages a care plan for each of her patients. Her goal, working with others on the team – including social workers, home health aides, doctors, volunteers, and chaplains – is to control symptoms and ensure that patients are as comfortable as possible.

Her positive attitude, compassionate demeanor, and background make her well-suited for this work.

Jane is particularly drawn to patients she calls "fiercely independent." With a knowing smile, she says, "I can identify with people who like to make their own choices. If I can just be with them wherever they are, whatever they want to accept, then I can offer them choices."

She understands that many hospice patients have a sense that they are losing control. "They are losing control of their bodies, but there are still choices they can make. How comfortable do they want to be? What kind of medicine do they want to try?"

Jane's the first to acknowledge that her work can be emotionally intense. She balances this with prayer and with time outside. "For me, spending time in nature is a way of being in the moment, to be in the presence of all this wonder."

Like so many other medical professionals at Mission Hospice, Jane truly feels that she's found her home here. She shares with others on the staff the "very high ideals of wanting people to have the best kind of life they can – to be comfortable, to do things that are important to them."

"I really love hospice. It feels like such a good fit. You spend so much time with the families, and you can make a big difference in their lives. It really helps families feel supported when they know we are here for them."

Our Volunteers

Mission Hospice & Home Care volunteers are a special kind of people – they are the heart and soul of our care. Our direct care volunteers provide vitally important emotional and social support to our patients and their families. Our dedicated indirect care volunteers offer their time and talents in the office, assisting with mailings, special events and administrative tasks. In 2012, Mission Hospice volunteers donated more than 8,500 hours of their time.

Mission Hospice & Home Care is dedicated to providing patients with the physical, emotional, and spritual support they need to spend their final months in comfort. In 2012, we provided hospice, advanced care (home care), and transitional support for patients facing cancer, cardiac and lung disease, and other life-limiting illnesses.

Our individualized, quality care exceeds the levels covered by Medicare and private insurance, and contributions from the community make up the difference.

Thanks to your financial support and the efforts of our professional staff and dedicated volunteers, Mission Hospice & Home Care provided patients and families with professional care and comfort when needed most.
